

7 THINGS TO MAKE LIFE SIMPLE

[From Henry Kong at Henry Kong's webpage] 1. I no longer put on a watch except on Sundays and even then I wonder why since there is a big fat clock on my phone - still I am keeping the watch for sentimental reasons. It would also come in handy if I need to pawn it for some emergency.

2. I have since replaced my Treo 600 brick with a protruding antenna and i got a palm phone by a Singapore company called Xplore m68 it's not a phone that I would recommend to anyone but it works for me, and it's great to have a good bible program

3. Also, I got rid of the printers in my home and I replaced them with a colour laser when it was on promotion. If you have been messing around with b&w laser printers or ink jet, a colour laser does make life much simpler

4. Also I got a wireless ADSL router thus providing my entire neighbourhood with free unsecured broadband this is really wonderful as I can surf the web not only on my pc and notebook but lying on the couch with my Palm Zodiac and trusty Sony PSP

5. My wife likes to have hymns turned on in the background on Sundays so instead of fooling around with CDs, I converted them to MP3 and now it is simply a matter of scrolling to the album I want and enjoy music on the ipod

6. On weekdays, I now wear iron-free shirts I dont know how long i will keep this up but my wife certainly enjoys a reprieve from reduced ironing

7. the gmail account i got is really great. No more deleting of emails; easy search and I have all the addresses I want even when I travel
