Sunday Morning Worship

The Shema and the People of God | 8 January 2022

A very wise Christian once said, "We are derivative creatures." What he meant was, we humans derive or inherit our meaning, our value, our importance from Someone else. As our cultures go through an identity crisis, grasping at literally anything to give them even a smidge of meaning, followers of Jesus can rest easy in the God who is our everything.

Because God defines us instead of us defining ourselves, we discover who we are by listening to - shema-ing - God's eternal, loving voice. So central was shema-ing to the people of Israel that it became the name of their most important daily prayer. And it's a prayer we still have much to learn and benefit from thousands of years later.
