Seeing Signs And Wonders | 2 February 2025

In this digital age, where fake news and AI-generated images are everywhere, we are constantly told to stay on guard. We're trained to verify what we see and hear, to double-check every strange message and email. We have learned not to trust strangers but to remain skeptical until they prove themselves legitimate.

But when we import this mindset into the Christian realm, we simply cannot access the same kind of "proof" that we might wish in the human world. We hesitate to believe that God works in ways we can't understand, or that God can work at all when all the evidence says that it's impossible.

And yet, the God of the universe invites us to trust Him anyway. Will we put our faith, not in our expectations of how things should work, but in the God whose love is as certain as solid rock?

Come and See – Gamified!

These works by local artist Chez Hemdi playfully imagine what the life of Jesus might have looked like here in Asia. How many can you spot?

This is the last Sunday for our Revelational artwork! If you would like to win a special prize, please drop by the booth outside the auditorium and complete your answers!

And even if you don't intend to submit an answer sheet, please feel free to drop by the booth to admire the artwork while it's still there!

Recap: TTSH Visitation

On the afternoon of 25 January, a team of 14 PPCOC members conducted an outreach visitation at Tan Tock Seng Hospital (TTSH). The visitation encompassed four wards, reaching a total of 125 patients.

During the visits, the team distributed festive gifts including oranges and hand towels to the patients. To lift spirits and spread joy, the group performed both spiritual songs of encouragement and Chinese New Year songs. The team also had the privilege of praying with 43 of the visited patients.

This outreach strongly exemplified two of our church's core values:

Compassionate: Through personal visits, gift-giving, and songs, the team demonstrated Christ's love by bringing comfort and cheer to patients during their hospital stay, particularly meaningful during the festive season.

Restorative: The spiritual songs and prayers offered brought hope and emotional support to patients in their healing journey, contributing to their overall well-being beyond just physical recovery.

Here's what some of the participants had to say:

Thank God for such a wonderful opportunity to spread His love in this visitation. Thanks for organizing such meaningful outreach event.

Tan Chee Fong

I find this outreach (bringing cheer by singing and interacting with the patients) meaningful especially during festive seasons.

Pang Foon Yoong

It was a good time to bring cheer to the patients, bringing mandarin oranges to round up our visits and songs.

Ng Swee Yee

The visit today is meaningful. It helps to spread God's love to those who have not heard the word of God.

Lee Yoke Choi

This outreach took place within a short time frame - a touch and go affairs. This teaches us to rely on the Spirit's prompting and leading. We lift up morale, bring cheer, and show a Christian example. We need the power of prayers to align the patients towards God. A closer follow-up with requests from patients can be the bridge to evangelism. The church can rally together to make light work going forward.

Recap: TTSH Visitation

The patient visitation outreach at TTSH was a valuable opportunity to share God's love with those who may not know Jesus. Despite most patients not being Christians, they were remarkably open to prayer and receptive to hearing about Jesus' love and healing. This experience reinforced the importance of sharing God's love with others, especially those struggling or in need.

Frederick Yu

It was a privilege to pray for these patients, asking for God's peace, love, and healing in their lives. Notably, one Catholic patient requested revisits, which may lead to further opportunities to serve and support. We will explore ways to follow up and provide continued care.

This meaningful engagement with the community truly embodied our mission to extend God's love beyond our church walls, touching lives in practical and spiritual ways.

Upcoming Outreach: The next hospital visitation outreach is scheduled for Easter weekend, April 19, 2025. If you'd like more information, please contact Kyle or sister Mee Geok.
